18TH STREET BUSINESS MEN DISAPPOINTED BY CARNIVAL COMPANY.

After several weeks' of planning, advertising and making arrangements, the 18th street fair and carnival was a failure. Mostly on account of the carnival company that was to furnish the attractions refusing us at the last moment to fulfill their engagement, as they said they could not possibly put up on 18th street, as there was not enough vacant lots and space for their twelve shows and other attractions, namely: One (1) Merry-go-round, One (1) Ocean Wave, One (1) Ferris Wheel, and several small attractions.

The committee worked very hard trying to get other attractions, but failed. They even went to Sedalia to the State Fair to find attractions, but none could be found. Things might have been better if the business people on 18th street could have been made to see the advantage of a good live carnival and street fair for one week. The business men who contributed their money to make the fair a success should certainly receive the credit for doing their part to boost 18th street.

Persons who pledged to pay, but have not as yet. The committee is in hopes that they will in order to cut down the losses:

T. Z. REYNOLDS,
Committee.

In the death of John Whitlan, one of Kansas City's pioneer business men and for thirty-three years the owner of the famous "Joe and Charlie Emporium" at 15th and Grand Avenue, the colored people lost a good and true friend, who was a true exponent of the principles of the Roosevelt theory, "All men up and no men down."

For seventeen years, Officer Oscar Hardin and Elijah Hendricks were employed by him and only left his employ when they went into business for themselves. He always trusted them implicitly and they never betrayed that trust. Many times Hardin and Hendricks have carried as much as $3,000.00 of Mr. Whitlan's money and under his direction on Saturdays have cashed thousands of dollars worth of checks. These excellent young men not only sent a beautiful floral design as an attestation of their affection and regard for Mr. Whitlan during his lifetime but they also attended the funeral services last Thursday at the beautiful Wagoner funeral parlors.

Why He Uses Right Hand.

Major George W. Powell, who is notoriously left-handed, writes with his dexter hand, and is a fine penman. "Yes," said the major, "I write right-handed, and thereby hangs a tale. I was a school boy in eastern Indiana, in a school where the master was a rigid old Virginian. One day, at the writing lesson, he noticed that I was following the copy with my left hand. 'No more of that, my lad,' said the master; 'you'll write with your right hand or it will be the worse for you.' 'The next day, forgetting this threat, I was using my left hand at the writing lesson. He yanked me from my desk, drew my nankens trousers tight, very tight, over the seat and gave me a most cruel flogging, the testimony to which I carried for many days. When my father saw these black and blue stripes on my body he started out to find that Virginian. The schoolmaster had got wind of his coming and disappeared from the neighborhood, to be seen no more. But I have from that day always written with my right hand.'—Indianapolis News.

BASEBALL

SATURDAY GAME.

A. B. C. ALL-NATIONS BATTLE TO A TIE

In one of the best games played here this season the A. B. C.'s of Indianapolis and the All-Nations battled to a 12-inning draw yesterday afternoon at Association Park. When darkness ended the contest the score stood 5-5. The combat was also nip and tuck. First one club would go into the lead and then the other. The Indianapolis lads held the lead for six innings. They scored two runs in the opening stanza, one in the third and another in the fifth. The All-Nations didn't dent home plate until the third round, when one tally was made. In the sixth they tied the score by showing across three runs. The All-Nations made their fifth and final run in the eighth inning, while the A. B. C.'s knotting counter came in the first half of the ninth.

From the ninth inning until the twelfth, neither team got a man as far as third base. Flanagan, pitching for the Wilkinson-Gaul combination, and Johnson, hurling for the visitors, both heaved in grand style and neither was in danger. Benjamin Taylor was a hitting rampage and connected safely four times out of six tries. All his blows were good for one base. Blukol's batting and that of Mendez's were the main factors in the All-Nations' run getting. Blukol hit a home run with a runner on and tripled with a team-mate. On several sensational catches and plays were made by both teams. The teams will play the second game of the series this afternoon at 3 o'clock and each team will have its star flinger working. Donaldson will do the mound work for the All-Nations with "String Bean" Williams as his opponent. The score:

Errors Give Second of Series to the A. B. C.'s.

John Donaldson held the A. B. C.'s to three hits yesterday afternoon at Association Park, but his teammates bobbled and the A. B. C.'s won the second game of the series from the All-Nations, 3 to 0. The Indianapolis lads put over two runs in the first inning without the semblance of a hit. They made their other counter in the ninth round. Not a swat was made off Donaldson's delivery until the sixth inning. In the eighth the All-Nations loaded the bases after two were out, but the best cleanup batter could do was to die by the way of third to first. Williams, working for the visitors, was invincible in the pinches. He struck out eleven and allowed five hits. Donaldson also struck out eleven. He hit made by both clubs were good for but one base each. A. B. C. 200 000 001-3

A double by Blukol won the after piece for the All-Nations, when he doubled with two team mates on bases. Scores:

Joy for One at Least.

A minister, meeting a parishioner of his who had been quite recently married and about whose domestic happiness terrible stories were rife, saluted him, and said:
"Well, John, and how is all going on?"
"Oh, happily enough!" returns John.
"I'm glad to hear it. You know there were rumors of rows or—"
"Rows," says John. "Oh, yes, there are plenty of rows; whenever she sees me she catches the first thing to hand, a dish or anything, and fires it at me. If she hits me she's happy; if she doesn't, I am! Oh, we're getting on fine!"—Tit-Bits.

Scattered Wealth on Street.

During a severe windstorm which recently centered its force upon a small Oklahoma town, several thousand dollars' worth of jewelry displayed in a shop window was blown into the street when the front of the store was demolished. A large number of rings and unset stones, as well as other ornaments, were scattered broadcast. Because of the danger of being struck by flying debris, the owner and employees of the store were unable to attempt the recovery of the missing stock until the storm had partly subsided.—Popular Mechanics.
